DIXON, ILLINOIS MONDAY JUNE 3, 1912.

Dixon Daily Telegraph Twenty-Ninth Year No. 130

WINFIELD POWELL HAS BROKEN NECK

ENGINEER WHO FELL FROM A TRAIN AT DIXON FRIDAY
STILL LIVES.

X-RAY SHOWS BREAK;
HAVE OPERATED

Physicians Have Operated on Injured Man at Hospital—Will Endeavor to Reduce Fracture of Spinal Column and Remove Nerve Pressure—Is Delicate Operation.

In an effort to save his life, an operation was performed today on Winfield Powell, the Illinois Central engineer who fell from a train in this city early Friday morning and who has been in a paralyzed condition at the Katherine Shaw Bethesda hospital since that time.

Yesterday an X-Ray examination of the injured man's spine was conducted by Dr. W. R. Parker, the company's district physician, Dr. Staley of Freeport and Dr. A. F. Moore of this city, the latter operating the X-Ray machine. It was found that the injured man's neck is broken, and the operation was performed as the final chance for removing the pressure on the spinal cord. It is possible that the vertebrae may be so arranged that they will mend without and unfavorable result.

Powell, it will be remembered, fell from a train at the I. C. depot in this city at 2 o'clock Friday morning. He struck on the back of his head and was picked up in a paralyzed condition, although he was conscious all the time.

The outcome of the operation that was performed this morning is prophecy, according to the surgeons.

DELINQUENT TAX DOCKET TURNED IN

JUDGMENT ASKED BY COUNTY COLLECTOR—OBJECTIONS TO BE HEARD FRIDAY MORNING.

In the county court this morning County Judge Scott received from County Treasurer Frank C. Vaughan the delinquent tax docket, on which the county collector has asked judgment preparatory to the tax sale, to be held next Monday.

Several objections were filed this morning and Judge Scott set the time for hearing these objections at 10 a. m. Friday, June 7. Among the objectors are several property owners in Harmon township who object to the drainage tax for Harmon district No. 2; and the C. B. & Q. railroad company, which corporation objects to the county tax, the road and bridge tax in Amboy and the road and bridge tax in Willow Creek.

MISS TAGUE RESIGNS.
Miss Nell Tague on Saturday evening resigned her position at the O. H. Brown dry goods store and will take a vacation, spending some time in Chicago. It will be with regret that a large number of customers and friends learn of her resignation, for Miss Tague is one of the most obliging and competent saleswomen in the city and has made many friends through her tact and good nature.

SWAMP COMMISSION- ERS OPEN BIDS ON JOB

FIRST BID ON BIG JOB IS $354,369.50—THERE ARE SEVEN BIDS IN ALL.

The commissioners of the Inlet Swamp drainage district met this afternoon at the court house to open the bids for the proposed extension of the drainage district as outlined in the specifications for the eighth assessment which was recently approved by the county court.

Seven contractors have submitted work on the big job and the necessity of checking over the prices given in the proposals is slow. At the hour of going to press but one bid, that of G. A. McWilliams, had been announced. McWilliams proposed to do the work for $354,369.50.

CURTIS GUILD, JR.

Mr. Guild, who is the American ambassador to Russia, has announced himself as a candidate for the senate to succeed Senator Crane of Massachusetts, who says he will retire.

CATHOLIC CHURCH HELD MEMORIAL

MEMBERS OF ST. PATRICK'S HON-ORED DEPARTED SOULS AT OAKWOOD CEMETERY.

The members of St. Patrick's Catholic church held memorial services at Oakwood cemetery Sunday afternoon for the deceased members of the church. The parishioners met at the church at 2:30 and went to the cemetery in a body, where short services were conducted under the direction of Father Considine. The Rosary was recited by members for the departed souls as a feature of the exercises.

STERLING MAN SHOT BALD EAGLE

MAMMOTH BIRD KILLED CALF
ON FARM NEAR ROCK FALLS,
AND WAS MAKING MEAL OF
ANIMAL WHEN KILLED.

Sterling, June 3.—Special to Telegraph—While traveling south of Sterling yesterday afternoon Roy Wilson of this place, shot and killed a big black bald eagle that measured seven feet, three inches from tip to tip of wings.

Wilson and a friend were out walking on the Golden road south of Rock Falls. When they reached the Golden farm they saw a mammoth bird drop from the sky and pounce upon a partly grown calf in the field. The men ran for a gun and returning, shot the bird dead as it sat feasting on the carcass of the calf, which it had killed with its deadly beak and powerful talons.

PROPHETSTOWN YOUTH TAKES OWN LIFE

HARRY EVANS EMPLOYED CHARGE OF BUCKSHOT INTO HIS SIDE
AFTER QUARREL WITH GIRL.

Sterling, June 3.—Special to Telegraph—Harry Evans of Prophetstown, 20 years of age, killed himself at 10:30 Saturday night by discharging a load of buckshot into his left side.

Evans had called upon a young lady named Esther Gage that evening. He stayed at her home until about 10 o'clock and then left, going to the home of his sister, Mrs. Wm. Holton, where he locked himself in the room he used to occupy while at her home, and taking a shot gun, committed the deed.

It was stated here that a quarrel between Evans and the young lady was the cause of the tragedy.

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT.
The regular meeting of the city council, at which time bills for the month of May will be allowed, will be held this evening. The passage of the bills is the most important matter the council will have for tonight's session.

HAVANA CITIZENS FEAR OUTBREAK

Barricading Their Homes in Expectation of Uprising
of Black.

NEGROES BUY 10,000 KNIVES

Rebels Also Secure Large Number of Hidden Rifles—Seventeen Haytian
Women Found Dead After Battle
of Last Friday.

Havana, June 3.—The residents of Havana are barricading their homes in expectation of an uprising. The sale of more than 10,000 knives and machetes by Spanish firms to negroes has been reported to President Gomez, causing great excitement, especially in Kodado and Mariano, the two most exposed suburbs.

A large number of rifles, which have been hidden at Vento, in this province, are also in possession of the rebels.

Seventeen Women Found Dead.
Seventeen women were found dead near San Luis after Friday's fight. They are said to be Haytians, indicating support from that country.

Monteagudo sent a courier to Estenoz telling him that he must surrender within forty-eight hours or be summarily executed when captured. The surprise and capture of the rural guard station at Ramon de las Vegas was due to the treachery of a sentinel.

A proclamation issued by the Spanish consul general advises Spaniards to take no part in the fight against the blacks, fearing retaliation.

Laborers Desert Mines.
Fifteen hundred laborers have deserted the mines in the Daiquiri district and all work there has ceased. The Spanish-American Mining company has closed its works.

A dispatch to the American legation states that the province of Santa Clara is in a state of terror, and that several persons have been killed. There are no troops in that province and few rural guards.

U. S. Marines Ready to Land.
Washington, June 3.—With the extraordinary force of 100 marines and a landing party of 100 bluejackets, the little gunboat Paducah is lying close in shore at Daiquiri, making ready to intervene in Cuba. The navy department expressed belief that an American force will soon be ashore.

A sergeant of the rural guards was killed in the engagement at Daiquiri Saturday night. Two hundred employees of the Spanish-American Iron company with their wives and children have fled from their homes.

Mr. Beaupre informs that reports from the federal government of great victories over the insurgents are without foundation and the uprising is increasing steadily.

Proclaims Himself Governor.
Santiago, June 3.—News reached here that the rebels burned the post office, the telegraph office, the rural guards barracks, the railway depot and three houses to La Maya.

Eugenio Lacoste, the leader of the rebels, has proclaimed himself governor of Yateras, which is near Guantanamo. He has requested the landed proprietors in that region to give him $5,000 each and to furnish supplies of arms and ammunition, giving them 72 hours in which to comply.

CLOTHES STOLEN FROM DR. ROBBINS

ROOMS IN OFFICE BUILDING ENTERED
YESTERDAY AND TWO
SUITS TAKEN.

Dr. C. A. Robbins intended to go to Madison, Wis., this morning to attend a meeting of the Grand Encampment, I. O. O. F., of the state of Wisconsin. As is his custom when attending these affairs Dr. Robbins prepared to don his best raiment. Therefore he was greatly chagrined upon entering his clothes-dress to find that two suits of clothing, his very best, had been stolen some time yesterday. His rooms are at the rear of his office on First street, and are easily accessible, therefore no trace of the robber has been obtained. One of the suits stolen was a blue serge, which he had worn but a few times. Incidental to the above story, the doctor abandoned his proposed trip to Wisconsin.

KENT IS SMITHS' TRUSTEE.
The creditors of C. G. Smith & Son bankrupts, held a meeting before Referee Henry S. Dixon this morning, at which time W. G. Kent was appointed trustee, under bonds of $2,500.

HEIR TO $60,000 LOOKED FOR HERE

ST. LOUIS MAN LEFT ESTATE TO GLEN ADONIS COLE, WHO IT IS SAID IS HIS SON—SUPPOSED TO LIVE HERE.

Sunday afternoon by St. Louis papers to locate one Glen Adonis Cole, or his mother, Mrs. Francis Cole, who were supposed to have lived in this city, but although a thorough search was made and a comprehensive inquiry conducted, no trace of any such parties could be obtained.

The message from St. Louis was to the effect that Glen A. Cole was named as the only heir to an estate of $60,000 left by one Michael Monahan, a bachelor of St. Louis, who died about a year ago. According to the information received here Monahan, who died at the age of 89, had filed with his will an agreement signed by himself and Mrs. Francis Cole, formerly Mrs. Francis Gilbert, in which he stated that Monahan and Mrs. Cole, or Gilbert, were the rightful parents of the boy. The agreement was signed in Galena in August, 1899.

HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNI IN ANNUAL MEETING

SOUTH SIDE STUDENTS OF OTHER DAYS MEET TONIGHT IN ANNUAL REUNION—PROGRAM
AND BANQUET.

The annual meeting of the Dixon High School Alumni will be held in the assembly room of the high school building this evening at 8 o'clock sharp. During the meeting a musical program consisting of a vocal duet by Misses Ada Shippert and Irene Eichenberg and a vocal solo by Miss Mary Hauser, will be given.

Following the meeting the members will adjourn to the Christian church, where the Ladies Aid will serve a banquet consisting of the following: Chicken patties, mashed potatoes with gravy, sandwiches, radishes, pickles, salad, ice cream, cake, strawberries and coffee. The usual custom of toasts has been dispensed with and instead County Superintendent L. W. Miller and City Superintendent W. R. Snyder will give short talks on the Country School and Modern Methods, respectively. All members are urged to make this a banner meeting of the association.

TWO DIXONITES LAID TO REST TODAY

FUNERAL OF MICHAEL FLEMING
AND JOHN LONGERGAN HELD,
FATHER FOLEY OFFICIATING
AT BOTH.

The funeral of Michael Fleming was held this morning at 10:30 at St. Patrick's Catholic church and many friends of the deceased attended and paid their last tribute to the departed, following the remains to Oakwood cemetery, where interment was made. Father Foley officiated at the services.

John Longeran Funeral.
At 10 o'clock this morning at St. Patrick's church the last sad rites were performed over the remains of the venerable John Longeran. Father Foley officiated and conducted high mass for the departed, and burial was at Oakwood.

HIGHWAYMEN ESCAPE FROM PRISON BOAT

SEVEN WHITE CONVICTS BREAK AWAY, TWO RECAPTURED AND THREE DROWN.

New Orleans, June 3.—Special to Telegraph—Seven white convicts escaped from a prison boat today near Baton Rouge. Two of them were recaptured after an exciting chase in the water, two more are believed to have swam to safety and three others are believed to have been drowned in the raging waters in an effort to escape from their pursuers. Most of the men were highwaymen.

REPUBLICAN FIGHT REACHES CHICAGO

Became Vortex in G. O. P.
Political Maelstrom at Daybreak Today.

HOSTILE RANKS ARE ARRAYED

Headquarters of Contestants Are Opened Up Preparatory to Wage
Battle for the 228 Contested
Seats in Big Convention.

Chicago, June 3.—Chicago has become the political center of the United States.

In Washington lids of desks were jammed down at national headquarters of the Taft and Roosevelt seats of war and the hosts of managers, "gun-shoe" brigades and horde of press agents, etc., began the march on the city by the lake.

Today the four national headquarters are mixing things up in Chicago. From the break of day until the curtain falls on the convention, the rest of the country will be in political obscurity.

Location of Headquarters.

The headquarters, the managers and locations will be:
Taft headquarters—At the Congress hotel, in charge of Representative William McKinley.

Roosevelt headquarters—At the Congress hotel, in charge of Senator Joseph M. Dixon.

La Follette headquarters—At the Grand Pacific hotel, in charge of Walter L. Houser.

Cummins headquarters—In the Rector building.

Mr. McKinley and his aids arrived today, but Charles Dick, former senator from Ohio, who will handle the contests, came early this morning to open the headquarters.

Senator Dixon will probably not get here until tomorrow, but his entourage arrived here today. The Cummins and La Follette headquarters also were in full swing today.

The official list of contests filed so far was given out as numbering 228 by the national committee. Because of the chaos resulting from late filings and the withdrawal of contests after notification had been given of contests, the work has progressed slowly.

Lists of Contests.

The list as it now stands is:

Alabama—Six at large. Districts 1, 2, 5, 6 and 9; 16 seats.

Arkansas—Four at large. Districts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7; 16 seats.

California—Fourth district; 2 seats.

District of Columbia—Two at large.

Florida—Six at large. Districts 1, 2 and 3; 12 seats.

Georgia—Four at large. Districts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12; 28 seats.

Indiana—Four at large. Districts 1, 3 and 13; ten seats.

Kentucky—Districts 5 and 11; 4 seats.

Louisiana—Six at large. Districts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7; 20 seats.

Michigan—Six at large.

Minnesota—Fourth district; 2 seats.

Mississippi—Four at large. Districts 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7 and 8; 18 seats.

Missouri—Four at large. Districts 1, 3, 5, 7 and 14; 14 seats.

North Carolina—Districts 4 and 9; 4 seats.

Oklahoma—Third district; 2 seats.

South Carolina—First district; 2 seats.

Tennessee—Districts 1, 2, 9 and 10; 8 seats.

Texas—Eight at large. Districts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 14 and 15; 32 seats.

Virginia—Four at large. Districts 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 8 and 10; 18 seats.

Washington—Eight at large. Districts 1, 2 and 3.

May Be Increased.

This list does not include the Alaska contests or those which may be filed following the South Dakota, Arizona or Ohio elections of delegates. Six at large are still to be named in the latter state.

A number of contests which had been anticipated were withdrawn at the last moment. This was true in the seventh Indiana district and several Kentucky districts.

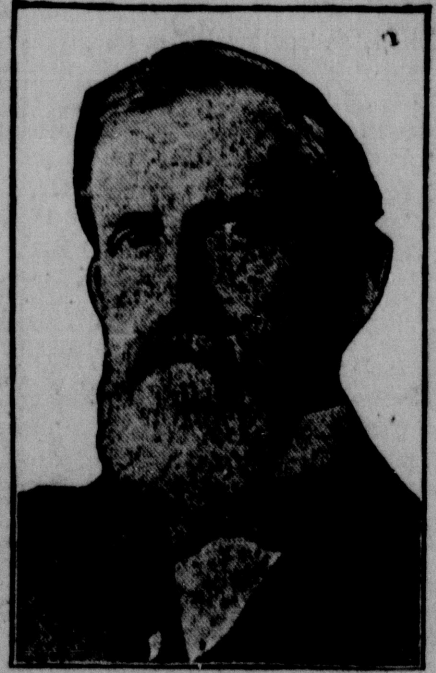

HOME FROM SCHOOL.

Miss Ruth Brown finished her school at Geneseo last week and is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Brown, to spend her vacation.

DIXON BOOKS MUST

DICTOGRAPH TRAPS
NEW JERSEY GRAFTERS

TALK REGISTERING MACHINE IS PLACED IN CITY HALL—PRO-DUCE UNTHOUGHT-OF EVIDENCE—60 OFFICIALS ARE INVOLVED.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 3.—Special to Telegraph—Thirty-nine city officials have been caught and incriminating evidence has been obtained against them by dictographs installed in the city hall by Detective Wm. Burns in the big graft hunt that has given the city the greatest political sensation in its history.

It became known here today that at least 60 officials are involved in the scandal. Dictographs were placed in the building to register whatever incriminating remarks alleged bribe-takers should make and it is said they have produced records showing evidence against men who were heretofore unsuspected.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed O'Donnell of Kirksville, Mo., have returned to this city to reside.

BARKOOT SHOWS WILL ARRIVE HERE SUNDAY

HOME COMING WEEK TO START OFF WITH A RUSH—BIG TIME LOOKED FOR.

MANY HIGH CLASS ATTRACTIONS

Twenty-Five Paid Attractions and Two Free Acts—Home Coming in Dixon Will Attract Big Crowds From Surrounding Country and Many Old Dixonites From Distant Points.

The K. G. Barkoot Worlds Greatest Shows, to play here all next week under the auspices of the Boosters club, will arrive here at an early hour Sunday in their special train of 21 double-length cars and begin immediately to make ready for the opening of the big gala week, which is scheduled to take place at 7:30 Monday, June 10.

The Barkoot organization presents a fine appearance and is one of the largest amusement enterprises of this nature that has ever visited Dixon.

In addition to the 25 paid attractions there are two sensational free acts, a number of concession booths and the Royal Italian Band. The latter is under the able direction of Signor Angelo Mummolo.

K. G. Barkoot, the general manager, states that he is prepared to give the city a high class, modern and thoroughly moral entertainment during his stay here and desires the public to know that he allows no confetti, gambling or any of the other objectionable features which sometimes accompany a show of this character.

The Circus Royale, from all appearances, and advance notices is the largest and best show of the organization. The feature of this attraction is Oscar V. Babcock, a daring cyclist who presents his death defying act known as Looping the Loop and Flying the Flume. Among the other shows worthy of special mention are Fair Japan, where one may see the costumes of far off Nippon and in addition be entertained for 30 minutes by a troupe of Japanese acrobats, jugglers, jiu jitsu artists, singers and dancers; the Russian village known as Soos (which means something far above all else around it) featuring the famous Raskin troupe of Russian singers, dancers, dervishers and musicians who came to the Barkoot shows only last week direct from Hammerstein's theatre, New York City; Hornes Zoological Arena and Trained Wild Animal Exhibit, presenting performing lions, baboons, jaguars, bears, leopards and many other members of the animal kingdom; the Egyptian Hall, featuring Shields Aeroplane Girl, an entertainment that delights and at the same time mystifies; the Wonder City, a remarkable mechanical device; the Beautiful Orient, depicting life and customs in the far east; the Alligator Girl, a strange prank of Mother Nature; Jessie James, big Wild West; the Old Plantation, colored cake walkers, singers and comedians; the Strange Girl, Electrica, a remarkable young woman who allows high voltage currents of electricity to pass through her body without any visible effect; the Katzenjammer Kastle; Johnny Webb, who is billed as the fattest baby on earth; Equine and Bovine Wonders, with Blue Bell, the horse with elephant skin and others; the Crazy House, the place to forget your troubles; Tiny Mite, the smallest horse alive; Congress of Worlds Wonders and the ever popular merry-go-round and the Ferris wheel.

Then there are the free acts, including Prince Nelson, who has dared to walk across Niagara Falls on a steel cable and who will thrill his auditors with his feats performed on a wire, suspended at a dizzy height, and Mile. Orrocco, champion European lady spiral tower ascensionist.

JUNE LAW TERM
STARTS ON MONDAY

The June law term of the county court will convene next Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, when Judge Scott will call the docket and make up the trial list. All attorneys who have cases before the court should be present at that time.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

BIRTHDAY HOROSCOPES.

MAY 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25

Have great possibilities and nature has lavished many gifts upon you; are a thinker, but often lack continuity of thought; purpose and affection. Poverty grinds you sadly, and unless you have enough to gratify your desires can be dismally unhappy. If a woman, are apt to be nervous and hysterical unless overcome in early life; if a man, careless in manner.

DEMENTTOWN

Just one more week in which to invite all your friends to "come home."

Therefore, in the words of Chas. Miller: Get busy.

A wise man changes his mind—every time his wife does.—Sage Sayings of Mayor Valle.

About a thousand kids, more or less, are now having an awful time trying to figure out what to do with themselves. And it's a safe bet that already some of them are wishing it was time for school to start.

Now let's all get together this week and pull hard for home coming week.

The Chicago papers say that Senator Lorimer is ill, but that he's going to Washington to plead for himself just the same. It's possible the senator will be a great deal sicker when he starts back to Chicago.

Ever notice that there are a lot of men who delight in explaining why instead of demonstrating how?

His Proof Reading.

The story is told of a Dixon pastor who has frequently expressed great surprise at the appearance of so many typographical errors in newspapers. This worthy gentleman recently had occasion to have printed a program of religious services to be held in his church, and when the program was ready for press he stipulated that in order that there be no errors in it the proof should be submitted to him. This was done and he proofs were corrected according to his markings. Imagine his own and the consternation of his parishioners the next Sunday morning when in the printed programs they were confronted by the awful intelligence: "Jesus Resigns and Heaven Rejoices."

MAY GROW A NEW

SORT OF OATS

Madison, Wis., June 1.—Wisconsin may soon grow a variety of oats especially adapted to the manufacture of oatmeal. This eventually depends upon the successful outcome of a series of experiments, now being made at the state agricultural college on different kinds of oats. The plan is to grow one large kernel of oats in a single husk, or spikelet, instead of two.

Realizing the almost universal use of oatmeal as a breakfast food and the constant demand of oatmeal manufacturers for a variety of oats that would produce the best quality of food, these various experiments have been started here especially to meet this need.

FARM WEEDS ARE ENEMY OF CROPS

HOW TO RID THE FARM OF OBNOXIOUS PLANTS—CAUSE OF SPREAD AND LOSSES RESULTING.

With the germination and growth of the seed the farmer plants weeds also appear, and with them the old problem—how to get rid of them. Weeds seem small and insignificant at first, but like all evils, if not checked at once, they multiply and spread and grow until the farmer sees his profits decreasing while the cost of producing his crops is on the increase—then, and only then, many of us realize that the weed problem is one of real importance.

In spite of laws enacted with the view to assist the control, and notwithstanding the abundance and excellent literature on the subject the spread of obnoxious weeds is increasing. The evil can never be overcome until we all realize its significance, obtain the information necessary and then put the improved methods into practice.

Why Weeds Spread.

There are four good reasons for the spread of weeds, and the first is carelessness in allowing them to get a foothold when they first appear. Second: The ignorance of their habits and manners of growth make it difficult to exterminate them when the field has become thoroughly infested. Third: The sowing of impure seed, particularly of clover, alfalfa and grass seeds, and the importation of many in the grain crop seed we secure from elevators and seed houses. Fourth: A failure to keep fences and roadsides free from the weeds.

Why Weeds Are Costly.

Weeds take up, in large quantities, the plant food that would otherwise be available to the crop of grain but fully as important as this is the tremendous amount of soil moisture they use. Then by their vigorous growth they force ahead and more or less crowd out the more tender crop. Frequently a good rotation and a paying crop must be dropped for a year or two to rid a particular field of some noxious weed, and the cost of harvesting and cleaning grain is increased.

Method of Control.

In order to fight weeds successfully we must know their names and habits of growth, and for the purpose of intelligent study we should place all into three classes, viz.:

Annuals—Weeds which grow, produce seed and die during the same year.

Biennials—Weeds which live two years.

Perennials—Weeds which live for many years.

Annual, or one year weeds, may be controlled by any method that will prevent their growing quickly for destruction while young and before they have an opportunity to produce seed.

Biennials must be cut off below the crown of their roots before they flower.

Perennials are far more difficult, because most weeds belonging to this class have what are called running root stalks, which are often of considerable length and spread over a large area. When these roots are broken into separate pieces by plowing, harrowing, etc., each piece will usually produce a new plant, but we can eradicate even the worst of these by thorough treatment. Constant, thorough cultivation, exposing the roots to the sun and keeping the plant from producing leaves; this will weaken them while rotation and winter will help finish them.

Sheep are an important factor in weed eradication while our common birds, if properly protected, destroy millions of weed seeds as well as big quantities of insects; and finally, we must know weed seed and be able to select grass seed and grains for planting that are clean and pure. We must keep every fence corner and roadside free from weeds and remember that every weed can be eradicated—all must yield to the intelligence and perseverance of man. —Illinois Farmers' Institute, Springfield, Ill.

NEWS OF ILLINOIS

A Telegraphic Chronicle of State Happenings.

DROWNS SEIZING SPIDER WEB

Bert Aten, Forty-Five Years Old, of Dundee, Reaches Out Too Far From Bridge and Falls Into the Fox River.

Elgin, June 3.—Bert Aten, forty-five years old, of Dundee, five miles north of here, fell from a bridge into the Fox river and was drowned when he attempted to catch a spider web that dangled from a telephone wire across the river, just beyond his reach. His companion, Howard Earls, sat on the bridge all night waiting for Aten to swim ashore.

C. J. Doyle Succeeds Rose. Springfield, June 3.—Cornelius J. Doyle of Greenfield, state fire marshal, was appointed secretary of state of Illinois by Governor Deneen to fill the vacancy caused by the sudden death of Secretary James A. Rose.

The governor's action followed the unanimous selection of Mr. Doyle by the Republican state committee as the successor to Mr. Rose as the Republican nominee for secretary of state on the Republican state ticket.

The name of Louis L. Emerson of Mount Vernon was suggested in the state committee meeting, but was withdrawn after a discussion of the situation.

To qualify as secretary of state, Mr. Doyle filed bond in the penal sum of $100,000, approved by two justices of the supreme court and by the governor. He was sworn in and entered upon his duties today.

Newspaper Man to Asylum.

Bloomington, June 3.—Possessing the hallucination that people were trying to poison him, that his landlady was conspiring against him and that he was under the ban of everyone generally, Edgar Phipps, formerly a newspaper man of Kansas City, was committed to the asylum for the insane at Kankakee. Phipps is a member of a prominent family of Pittsburgh, Pa., is a college graduate and has traveled extensively abroad. He attained a wide acquaintance by his work on newspapers of Kansas City and has a wife and two children there.

Oldest Engineer Pensioned.

Centerville, June 3.—Humphrey Roberts, one of the oldest engineers on the Illinois Central railroad, was placed on the pension list, having served forty-five years. Mr. Roberts made his last run from Centerville on train No. 2, going to Champaign. "It's the saddest trip of all to me," said the old engineer. "For I feel just as young as I did when I started forty-five years ago. During the time I have been constantly employed by the Illinois Central. I have never missed a week at home."

Chicago Woman Gets $150,000.

Aurora, June 3.—The suit of Walter D. Crosman of Aurora, a nephew to break the will of Mrs. Elmina Stone, widow of Corliss P. Stone, former mayor of Seattle, has been settled by a payment of $150,000 to the Aurora and a like amount to a niece, Mrs. Grace Monroe Irwin of Chicago, by Mrs. Florence McPherran of Pasadena, Cal., the chief beneficiary. Undue influence was the charge made by the plaintiffs. Former Mayor Stone of Seattle was a son of John C. Stone of Aurora.

Chewers of Weed in Grief.

Allendale, June 3.—As the result of a burglary in Allendale there is no tobacco chewing done here now, and Allendale, although small, has been noted as a place where the weed was in very high favor. A few nights ago burglars broke into one of the restaurants, and after getting all the grub they wanted, made a getaway with a goodly supply of tobacco. All the chewers have since then dropped chewing lest suspicion fall upon them.

Sixteen Receive Diplomas.

Carlinville, June 3.—More than 600 persons attended the graduation exercises of the Carlinville High school. The speaker was Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, president of Armour Institute and pastor of People's church, Chicago. The music was by the Springfield Conservatory of Music. There were sixteen graduates.

Woman Leaves $30,000 for Home.

Rockford, June 3.—Mrs. Fanny Rosencrance, who died a few weeks ago, bequeathed her estate of $30,000 to found at New Milford township a home for dependent children. It is to be a Methodist institution and named Rosencrance Memorial Home.

Boy Drowned at Taylorville.

Taylorville, June 3.—Pearl Riley, thirteen years old, son of Tyler Riley, was seized with cramps and drowned in the Sangamon river near Mount Auburn while swimming with three other boys.

Falling Porch Kills Rich Man.

Calo, June 3.—While standing in front of a saloon at Mounds, Henry Will, a wealthy landowner of Porterville, Ind., was killed by a falling porch, which crushed his skull.

Rev. Mrs. C. C. Babcock Accepts Call. Sterling, June 3.—Rev. Mrs. C. C. Babcock, Fort William, Canada, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the First Christian church of Erie.

BOYS FIND EIGHTY DIAMONDS

Costly Gems Had Been Swept Out With the Rubbish When Jewelry Store Was Cleaned.

Philadelphia.—The discovery of diamonds in an ash barrel in front of Charles Kranich's jewelry store, 2466 Kensington avenue, raised a disturbance that suggested the scene of a "lucky strike" in the gold fields of Alaska.

Mrs. Kranich saw a number of boys struggling around the barrel, each endeavoring to dig his hands into the contents. These were joined presently by a dozen men, who also entered the strange scramble. Alarmed, Mrs. Kranich called her daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Brooks, and her sister-in-law, Miss Bessie Kranich, who learned that the men and boys were digging for gems in the ash barrel. Mrs. Kranich went into the street, and on looking closer discovered that the boys had found diamonds that her husband had procured for his Christmas stock.

Soon afterward the boys went into the store and asked Mrs. Kranich whether the crystals were valuable. She shrewdly replied that they were only cheap stones, but if they cared to go to the trouble of looking for more she would pay them a moderate reward for each one. The ruse was effective. One by one boys went to her and returned the stones, some of them not asking anything in return.

Meanwhile the Eighteenth district police heard of the unusual occurrence, and Lieutenant Keith dispatched six policemen in civilian clothes to endeavor to recover the diamonds. The result of this was that before night fifty-four of the missing stones had been found and returned to their owner; about twenty were still missing.

When Mr. Kranich learned of the incident he said that he and two young men were gathering up rubbish in the store in the morning, and it was into this that the diamonds must have accidentally dropped. Shortly before cleaning the store, he said, he had taken from his safe a leather case containing a number of diamonds, which, he said, he either examined or else showed to a customer. The stones were sorted, those of each kind being wrapped separately in tissue paper. Thus the diamonds were probably not noticeable and dropped into the rubbish that was being swept from the store and later dumped into the ash barrel.

WORK FOR CLOUD SPOTTER

Humble but Indispensable Adjunct in the Process of Taking Moving Pictures.

"Among the new jobs that modern life has originated," said a statistician, "that of the cloud spotter is interesting and odd. The cloud spotter doesn't, of course, make spots on clouds. No, no. He stands on a high roof with a costly field glass and he continually notifies his employer, a moving picture maker, of the condition of the heavens."

"You see, for an elaborate moving picture play a steady, uniform light is essential. The pictures must be taken all in sunshine or all in clear gray light. Otherwise they differ. Some are weak and some strong. They don't match on the screen. So the cloud spotter on the roof, searching the heavens with his glass, studying the course and velocity of the wind, assures his boss of a good half-hour or hour for photographing a moving picture play, and thus saves a waste of films that would otherwise be many times larger than his frugal salary."

Inn of the Mild Henry.

The inn "of the mild Henry (zum sanften Heinrich)" in a little town of Posen has evidently changed hands during its career, for there is at least an intimation, in an advertisement recently inserted in a Posen newspaper by Hermann Dunkelberg, the present owner, that he may not be especially mild. The advertisement reads: "It has come to my notice that I am accused of having denounced colleagues because they suffered 'Tannebaum' (a forbidden game) 'to be played in their places. As I have no desire to waste my time in court, I hereby promise three marks to anybody who believed this report out of lack of brains, five marks to anybody who spread it because of malice and ten marks to the originator of it, which he can get on personal application to me. Will pay fair price for a good, usable bullwhip. Hermann Dunkelberg, Inn of the Mild Henry."

Weddings and Telegrams.

"I want all you boys to be right on the job at two o'clock and at four and eight this evening," said the chief operator in the local telegraph office. The persons addressed were four messenger boys. "What is going to happen at two, four and eight o'clock?" asked a man who had overheard the order. "Weddings," said the operator. "There is a whole bunch of weddings in this neighborhood scheduled for the afternoon and evening and the boys must be on hand to deliver telegrams of congratulations. We have to keep a sharp eye on weddings. About half an hour before the time set for the ceremony the 'God bless the union' messages come pouring in from out-of-town friends. Three telegrams have already been received with instructions to hold them until the ceremony is about over."

I Want To Talk With YOU

If you are not carrying a bank account I want to talk with you about the help a bank account will be to you.

You and I have a mutual interest in your carrying an account at The City National bank. Naturally I want to see you identify yourself and your financial interests with us. You want to get ahead in the world. Realizing that a banking connection is an essential factor in carrying your financial plans through to success you are interested VITALLY INTERESTED, in identifying yourself with a strong, serviceable bank.

HOME HEALTH CLUB.

By Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Indiana.PEROXIDE OF HYDROGEN—Having
heretofore given the chemical character of this liquid, and the fact that it always is to be found in the Home Health Club Books, makes it unnecessary to repeat it here.Peroxide of Hydrogen is not a medicine or drug, in the ordinary sense, any more than air or water.
It is merely the concentrated elements of these and it is the most perfect purifier known. As a disinfectant
it is invaluable and should be in every household all the time. It is not poisonous and may be swallowed without harm—to a reasonable extent. Anything is poisonous if you take too much—even bread and meat.Infected sores, abscesses, any diseased surface, may be treated with it to the best advantage. It purifies and cleanses instantly, by oxidizing
the poisonous substances energetically
and rendering infected parts sterile. At the same time it does not injure healthy tissues but cleanses
them thoroughly, when effectually applied. It destroys the cause of pus and makes it entirely harmless. And when applied it bubbles vigorously, showing that it is making a one-sided and victorious fight. It is a relentless enemy of foul odors.A solution in proportion of one ounce of the peroxide to a gallon of water is a perfect deodorant and disinfectant purifying cellars, outhouses, etc., and in this, or even greater solutions it makes a purifying wash
after a bath. Where the odor is perspiration and it becomes troublesome, it is exceedingly efficacious by sponging the armpits, heels, feet, etc.,
with it. Used as a mouth wash it cleanses the teeth and mucous membranes and renders the mouth clean and fresh, besides purifying the breath and preserving the teeth. It makes an excellent gargle for sore throat and used in the proportion of a teaspoonful to a pint of water it gives great relief for catarrh and hay fever, as a nasal treatment. For bites of animals, insects and reptiles
it should be applied at once. It destroys the power of contagion, and armed with it, one may be brought in contact with infectious diseases
with impunity, using it both before and after exposure, the latter if brought in contact with contagion unwittingly. It is fine for sunburn, tan, pimples, parasitic growths and other facial blemishes are removed by its use. It bleaches the hair and dark clothing and must therefore be kept away from injuries. Cuts, bruises, burns and all such injuries should be treated with it at once.Peroxide of hydrogen is not a patent medicine but is as free from ownership in the secret of its manufacture as air and water. It is very inexpensive and may be procured in any drug store, hence this is not an advertisement for its sale.
There is probably no single article
for healing purposes that has so many healthful uses as peroxide of hydrogen. Get a bottle of it and try it at the first demand and you will be thankful to the Home Health club
for sending you this advice.

Club Note.

Dear Doctor:
Have had what the doctors
pronounce hives for more than a year.
They break out in lumps like large welts mostly along in the evening or in the night, but there is usually some on my body. They come on the limbs and body and my lips swell and get very thick. They are very annoying. The doctors blame it on my stomach or what I eat, but my stomach seldom bothers me.

—L. G.

This difficulty is very annoying,
and is most frequent among children, although occasionally adults will be troubled with it. It is usually caused by digestive derangements,
such as provoked by eating certain classes of food which may be especially unacceptable to some stomachs.
Honey and strawberries, cucumbers
and shell fish are often regarded as causes for hives.The necessary treatment consists in keeping the bowels open and aiding the digestion by some such remedy as Golden Seal or Compound Gentian. Witch hazel applied externally allays the itching.There is a possibility of the trouble being something else. The above
only refers to a case of hives.

PLAYING BALL ON SUNDAY.

Editor of the Telegraph:
On yesterday (Sunday) afternoon
from 2 o'clock until dark, Van Buren avenue was a bedlam of howling, disturbance baseball players whose game
and noise desecrated the Sabbath and was extremely annoying to those who were trying to enjoy a peaceful afternoon of rest.They made so much noise in front of the Congregational church that the services inside were interrupted,
and it was necessary for officers of the church to step outside and ask
the boys to stop, to which no attention was paid.

What can be done about it?

A CITIZEN.

Ed. Note—Such action would certainly be construed in the light of a disturbance of the peace and a nuisance, and it is up to the police department to regulate such offenders.
A warrant could be sworn out for any or all of the players, or a phone call to the police from any of the residents of Van Buren avenue who are being disturbed, at the time of the disturbance, should bring the police to the scene and it would be their duty to put a stop to the trouble.

BLASS PITCHES ONE-

HIT GAME FOR BROWNS

Blass held West Brooklyn to one hit yesterday afternoon when the Dixon Browns played the town team
there, and therefore Dixon had little difficulty in grabbing the game, score 4 to 1. That hit was something of a scratch, too, as the high wind carried the ball away from the fielders.Long pitched for West Brooklyn and he twirled a good game. He was caught by Malach, a brother of Dixon's catcher. Incidentally the Dixon Malach showed the West Brooklyn-
ites something about hitting the ball.
Hillicker and Lightner distinguished themselves for Dixon.

PROPRIETARY MEDICINES

are usually the result of the wholesale preparation of some mother's recipe or doctor's prescription which has been found especially successful in relieving the ailments for which it is prepared, and which has stood the test of time.Such is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, originally prepared from roots and herbs for female ills by Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass. For nearly forty years it has proven a great benefactor to the women of America in relieving female diseases of every nature. It's wonderful success proves its merit.

HE'S A WINNER.

There's one drug clerk in the city who should go into the diplomatic service, if he always is as ready as he was Saturday afternoon. We happened to be standing in this certain store waiting our turn, when the young man came to wait on a woman of perhaps 50 years, who stood next to us."Have you any creams that will restore the complexion?" she asked.
"No, ma'am," he answered, "but we have several compounds that will preserve it."And she felt for it too. Bought $4 worth of the dope.

NOTED ACTRESS KILLS SELF

Hedi Herdina Longed for a Theater of Her Own and Lost Her Fortune.Vienna—One of the prettiest, most popular comedienne of the variety
stage, Hedi Herdina, twenty-six years old, blew out her brains with a revolver in her elegantly furnished apartment in the Czerningasse a few days ago because of financial losses
in a vaudeville enterprise.A few hours before she committed suicide she met friends in a cafe and was as gay and entertaining as usual.
At midnight she went home, wrote
some letters and rang for her child's nurse, requesting that the child be brought without waking it. Repeatedly she kissed the sleeping child, softly, then put around its neck a chain to which was attached the key of her safe.After this she went to bed and the maid noticed that she took with her a small mirror. When found dead next morning the lamp in her room was burning, the mirror and a revolver had fallen from her hands. She had pressed the weapon to her right temple.When only sixteen her talents were discovered in Berlin. She was paid the highest salaries ever earned by a soubrette in Germany. While performing there a wealthy Turk fell in love with her and took her to Egypt.
Two years ago she returned to Berlin
with $125,000 which her wealthy admirer had given her. Four months ago she came to Vienna. Here she was not satisfied with being a queen of the variety stage. She determined to own a vaudeville theater, and in the Mon-nopol Variety lost half her fortune, her partner, who managed the Tabarin theater, disappearing with the rest of her money. This caused her to kill herself.

Art.

Art is the great and universal refreshment. For art is never dogmatic; holds no brief for itself; you may take it, or you may leave it. It does not force itself rudely where it is not wanted. It is reverent to all tempers, to all points of view. But it is wilful—
the very wind in the comings and goings of its influence, an uncapturable
fugitive, visiting our hearts at vagrant, sweet moments; since even he often stand without being able quite to lose ourselves! That restless oblivion comes, we never quite know when—and it is gone! But when it comes, it is a spirit hovering with cool wings, blessing us, from least to greatest, according to our powers; a spirit deathless and varied as human life itself.—John Galsworthy in the Atlantic.

YALE OARSMAN TO BE ENVOY

Chung Mun Yew Appointed Minister
of New Republic at Washington.New York.—Chung Mun Yew, the old Yale coxswain, has been appointed minister of the Chinese republic to the United States, according to a Shanghai dispatch to the Herald.Chung entered Yale in 1883 after preliminary studies in the Hartford, Conn., public school, and made the crew in the freshman year, steering
the Yale shell to victory against Harvard. He was elected to the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, the only one of his race to be so honored.He was called back to China before completing his studies, but returned to this country some years later and acted as an interpreter at the legation
in Washington when Dr. Wu Tingfang was minister.Previous reports have been to the effect that the post at Washington would be raised to an embassy and that Dr. Wu would be sent here as ambassador.STARS SNATCH VIC-

One-Hit Game—Score, 4 to 1—
Ward Miller Called "Old Grump"
—Stony Pointers on a Tear.In a game replete with hitting and many errors, Dixon's Stars came from behind yesterday and deliberately grabbed off their game with the Morrison Independents after it looked very much as if the visitors had the contest cemented in their bat bag.
The game was one that could not honestly be called "good," but it pleased the crowd, for crowds, some how, seem to like to see their favorites come from behind and nose
out the pacemaker.For three innings Dixon lead by a score of 3 to 0, and they got these runs without the semblance of a bingle.
After retiring Morrison in order
in the first, Burke, leading off for our pets, went out, short to first.
Lally waited for some bad ones and as a result of his patience was given free transportation to the initial corner. He promptly started to steal second, and kept right on to third when Powell tried to see if he could throw from the plate into deep center. He came on home with the run when Burch muscled Hunter's grounder all over the diamond. Curtis had a similar attack when Joe Keenan shoved an easy one at him and Hunter went along to second on it. He was forced at third on Monahan's slow roller to the box, and Charlie Keenan fled to left for the third out.

Two More in Third.

The visitors got their first bingle
off Keenan in the third when Burch shoved a three-racker into right after two were down. He stayed on third, too, when Powell fanned.Dixon shoved two more across in the third by virtue of a couple of errors by Burch and a pass to Lally, Burke and Lally being the two to cross the rubber.

The Balloon Goes Up.

At this point it looked as though the Morrisons could do nothing
with Keenan, and that the Stars
were going to have their troubles
with Ostema, who succeeded Knox after the third. But the ropes got loose in the fourth when Morrison scored five times on four hits. The entire bunch faced Keenan in that awful inning. Curtis led off with a hit over second and Ritchie pue one through short before the crowd realized what was going on. They advanced when Ostema went out, third to first, and Curtis scored a minute later when Hunter forgot to close his hands on Burkett's roller.Monahan had a bad time with Vi-ner's offering and another crossed the plate. Reed went out via the Keenan-Whitebread route but Degrot and Burch followed with bin-gles, driving home three more. Powell ended the inning when he saved
a hard one at Burke, which our dandy little third sacker grabbed off and shot over to Whitebread.

Lots Doing in Sixth.

Although Lightner tried to start something by hitting over third in the fourth, Whitebread, Burke and Lally fanned in order, leaving their teammates talking to the first sacker.
The visitors added three more in the sixth by virtue of two errors by Monahan, one by Burke and a three sack-er by Powell.Things looked bad for Dixon then,
with the score 8 to 3 against them.
But they didn't quit and the Morrison boys broke under the strain.
Charlie Keenan got in the way of one of Ostema's fast ones and walked painfully but joyously to first. Blackburn slammed one into left and Degrot let it get by him. Lightner followed with a hit over third, scoring Keenan, and Whitebread doubled into right and two more crossed the pan. Burke went out, second to first,
following which tragedy Lally singled through the bog, Whitebread coming. Lally tried to steal and was caught a mile. Hunter singled, but in vain, for Joe Keenan could only slam an easy grounder to second.
Net result of inning, four runs and a score of 8 to 7, with Morrison on the long end.

Double Play Saves Day.

Neither side scored in the seventh and a double play saved things for Dixon in the eighth when four Mor-risonites connected safely without a score. Viner's hot grounder took aNOTABLE MAY SALE

nasty bound as it came to Lally, who had replaced Monahan at short, and hit the shortstopper in the bean.
and Powell singled in succession.
With the sacks full Curtis lined to Lally for the third out.

Then Came the Joy.

Then joy reigned supreme for Dixon took the lead in their half of the eighth. Lightner started the happy event by punching out his third hit.
It didn't look much like a score,
though, when Whitebread fanned and Burke shoved one to third on which Lally was forced at second.
But Lally was the boy of the hour,
for he hit one for three sacks into deep center, Burke scoring easily,
and Lally came home with the winning run farce and four-fifths seconds later when Hunter hit one to short too fast to be handled. Keenan fled to second but what matter, Dixon was in the lead. That's all The four Morrisons singled. A double play, Monahan to Whitebread, saved

the day.Two girls from Sterling occupied front seats in the grand stand and rooted hard and consistently for Dixon.A horse, attached to an ice cream wagon, created some excitement by trying to show its joy at the way Dixon was turning the tables in the eighth. Said horse tried to jump ono some young men who were reclining on the grass in front of him.Lightner staged one of his fancy running catches in the ninth and probably prevented the score being tied, when he raced over the line
and pulled down Ritchie's long fly.
Had the ball gotten away from him
Ritchie would have scored on Bur-kett's two sacker. Lightner has a very talented way of picking those long ones out of the air. So sure was Ritchie that the ball had gone to the river that he kept on running long after Lightner had critically examined the ball to see if the trade mark was still plain.Mike Monahan had another of his bad days. It's unusual and the fanshope he's not getting the habit.
The visitors came from Morrison
in a motor bus, returning to the Whiteside county seat immediately
after the game.

LESSONS ON SILOS AND USE OF SILAGE

SILO IS NOT MODERN INVENTION—CHEMICAL ACTION AIDS DIGESTION.

The storing of grain in silos is by no means a modern invention, for in very early times in Egypt, Italy, Mexico and Spain, seed was stored in such rooms. In ancient times, however, the storing of grain such places was principally to keep insects and vermin from it or to keep it fresh for times of famine.

Manley Mills, a farmer of Michigan, built the first silo in the United States; he built it in the year 1875, and while farmers generally have been slow to realize the advantage of this method of storing crops for feeding the lower animals, at the present time the silo is found on many thousands of farms in this country, and it may be considered an established fixture in American farm economy.

Important Features

Some important advantages of the silo are that it permits the utilization of many green crops that would otherwise be wasted and the providing of a green food in winter or during a season of drought in summer. The chemical processes that occur in the silo during fermentation makes the material more digestible. This process is supposed to be almost identical with the change that takes place in the first stomach of the cow. The effect is to break down the fibrous substance and render it more soluble. The effect of feeding silage to milk cows is the same as that of turning them into a green pasture. The silo provides cheap food that can be used with good pasture. The silo provides a cheap feed that can be used with good results at any time of the year; it prevents the sacrifice of young stock because of a shortage of feed; it utilizes the corn stalks, takes drudgery out of winter feeding and one has only to make a little investigation to find the silo owners well satisfied with the plan.

Corn Best Silage Plant

Indian corn is the great silage plant of America. It is adapted to a wide range of latitude and longitude and will produce the largest amount of nutritive silage per acre of any crop we can grow. Fifteen to 20 tons of green fodder can be grown on one acre without difficulty in nearly any part of Illinois.

Many experiments have shown that the corn for silage contains the most nutriment when the kernels begin to glaze, or when denting is established, and before the lower leaves of the plant begin to dry. If cut before this period, too large a percentage of water is harvested with the crop, while the greatest development of food substance has not been reached by the plant.

A Good Time to Build.

All kinds of silos, wood, concrete, stone and vitrified brick, have proven their merit, so that all that remains for us is to get busy and build and perhaps the most favorable time is between haying and corn harvesting—it will then be ready for filling when the corn is in best condition to be cut and stored. The popular type is the circular silo with inside walls of field and smooth and tight, to exclude the air and permit the silage to settle evenly. In filling the silage must be packed tightly against the walls, keeping surface level of a little higher at the wall.

Proportion and Capacity.

If silage is to be fed with greatest satisfaction it must be sweet and in perfect condition. It is spoiled by coming in contact with air, therefore the silo should not be of too great diameter. Not more than eight square feet should be allowed for each cow to be fed in winter, then when feeding 40 pounds of silage per cow, a layer about 1 1/2 inches deep will be fed daily. When feeding in summer it is advisable that the exposed area be not over half this size so that a layer three inches deep may be used daily. No silo should be larger than 20 to 22 feet in diameter, because distance from the door increases labor of removal. To be well proportioned the height of a silo should not be more than twice its diameter. No silo should be less than 30 feet deep, and to get sufficient depth for a silo not over 12 feet in diameter it may be placed 4 or 5 feet in the ground.

Size of Silo to Build.

In Illinois silage will usually be needed about 200 days, or from October 20 to May 10. If we have a herd of 30 cows to which we wish to feed silage during the 200 days, it will not, as a rule, be well to feed over 40 pounds of silage daily per head; if this quantity be fed 30 cows daily, on an average, for 200 days, 100 tons of silage will be required for which 110 tons of corn fodder must be put in the silo. We may take 40 pounds as the average weight of one cubic foot of corn silage; one ton of silage will, therefore, take up 50 cubic feet and 100 tons 5000 cubic feet. If a circular 100-ton silo is to be built it must be about 14 feet in diameter and 32 feet high.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

The Dixon College Summer Term will open one week from next Tuesday, that is, June 11, 1912, and will continue 9 weeks.

While the regular work of the school will be carried on as usual, special courses have been arranged for High School students and others who are back in their work, for those who are planning to teach and for those who are already teaching but who wish to improve their condition.

Tuition, room and board for the 9 weeks, which includes everything with the exception of books, is $35. The tuition alone is $9.00.

The better prepared one is for teaching, the better position he is apt to hold, the better salary he is apt to draw and the better he is apt to feel.

Plan to attend our Summer Term the full time and I am sure you will never regret it.

No matter what you want we can take care of you.

Write for further particulars if you desire and we will answer promptly.

Very respectfully,

I. F. EDWARDS,

President.

CHAPTER XXXII.

A Threatened Marriage.

Fagin heard them coming and took his boots from the table, and sat up straight in his chair; the preacher pushed his back until half concealed behind the door; Grant never looked around. Jones came into view first, and behind him walked Claire, her cheeks flushed, her head held high. At the door she paused, refusing to enter, her eyes calmly surveying the occupants.

"You sent for me, sir," she said coldly. "May I ask for what purpose?"

Even Fagin's cool insolence was unable to withstand unmoved her beauty and her calmness of demeanor. Apparently he had never met her before, for, with face redder than ever, he got to his feet, half bowing, and stammering slightly.

"My name is Fagin, Mistress," he said, striving to retain his accustomed roughness. "I reckon you have heard of me."

"I have," proudly, her eyes meeting his, "and, therefore, wonder what your purpose may be in ordering me here. I wish to return to my father who requires my services."

The guerrilla laughed, now angered by her manner.

"Well, I thought I'd tell you who I was so you wouldn't try any high and mighty business," he said coarsely, and eying her fiercely. "That ain't the sort of thing that goes with me, an' yer ain't the first one I've taken down a peg or two. However, I don't mean you no harm, only you'd better behave yourself. Yer know that man over there, don't yer?"

He indicated with a nod of the head, and Claire glanced in that direction, but without speaking.

"Well, can't you answer?"

"I recognize Captain Grant, if that is what you mean."

"I was speaking English, wasn't I? Yer ought to know him—yer engaged ter him, ain't yer?"

"Certainly not," indignantly.

Grant turned about, his face twitching.

"This is not my fault, Claire," he exclaimed swiftly. "Don't blame me for it. I am also a prisoner, and helpless."

She never looked at him, never answered, her entire attention concentrated on Fagin, who was grinning with enjoyment.

"That's sure right, young lady," he said grimly. "The Captain is only obeyin' orders ter save his own neck. There's no love lost between us, let me tell yer. But we're not so blameless after all, an' I reckon, we've got about all that is in the house worth cartin' away. Now we're goin' to have some fun, an' leave two happy hearts behind. Ain't that it, Jones? Clinton's licked; Washington has his hands full up north; an' this hull blame country is ours. Somewhere, Mistress, I've heard tell that you an' this Captain was pretty thick—how is it?"

Her eyes exhibited indignant surprise, but, after an instant's hesitation, her lips answered.

"I hardly know what you mean, sir. We were children together."

"An' engaged ter be married—eh?"

"There was an arrangement of that nature between our parents. But why should this interest you?"

He ignored the question, but his eyes hardened.

"I heard it this way. You were engaged until a few weeks ago. Then you met a damned Continental, a spy, an' imagined yer fell in love with him. Now de yer know what interest I've got? I'm with the Red-coats, an' if I can turn a trick fer that side I'm a goin' ter do it. You'll be blessin' me fer it some day. Now, see here, girl, I'm a goin' ter marry yer off before leavin' this house, I reckon yer ain't intendin' to make no fuss about it, are yer?"

She did not appear to comprehend, to realize the man was in earnest; she even smiled slightly.

"Is this some joke, sir, that I fail to grasp?" she asked. "Will you not explain?"

"Explain, hell!" and Fagin clapped his hat on his head, uttering a rough oath. "I spoke plain enough. Yer a goin' ter marry Grant, here an' now, an' there's the parson, waitin' ter do the job."

She partly turned, and as she recognized Jenks, the color deserted her cheeks, and her hands grasped the side of the door for support.

"Marry Captain Grant! I?" she exclaimed, horrified. "No, never!"

"Oh, I guess yer will, my beauty. Good Lord, why not? He's not so bad; there's many a girl would jump at the chance. Your plantations join, an' he's a King's officer."

"Listen to me, sir," she broke in, now cool and determined. "I'll give you my answer. I have already given it to Captain Grant. I will not marry him—not even to save this house from destruction; not even to release my brother from your hands. We can suffer, if necessary, for we are of a fighting race, but I shall never yield to threats."

She swept past him, around the end of the table, and confronted Grant, who drew back a step, scowling.

"So this is your way, is it, to win a woman you cannot gain by fair means? No, there is no need of your answering; I understand the whole despicable scheme. You masquerading as a prisoner of this creature! You are his puppet. I've known it for months. I learned the truth from Eric, and from that moment I despised you. While I believed you an honorable soldier I was able to treat you with outward respect, but no longer. You threatened me with a forced marriage once before, and failed. Now you endeavor to succeed with the help of this outlaw. But you never shall! No, do not speak! do not hold out your hands to me! You are not a prisoner. These men are here at their instigation; you are concerned in their infamy. I would rather die than have you touch me!"

She turned her back upon him, her face white, her eyes blazing, but Fagin stood between her and the entrance, grinning savagely.

"Let me pass, sir; this is my father's house."

"Not while I am here, Mistress," he snarled, without moving. "The old man isn't ridin' after me with a squadron of cavalry today. This happens to be my turn to give orders, and yer to obey! Do yer hear—yer'll obey! Those were n't pretty words yer spoke to Grant, but they don't hurt me none. You damned little spitfire, I'll marry yer myself if I could, just to break yer spirit. As it is, I'll show yer master fer once. So it's the spy yer want, is it?"

She stared at him without a word, a depth of hatred but no fear in her level eyes.

"Lost yer tongue, have yer? Well, we'll find it fer yer fast enough. What's the fellow's name?"

"To whom do you refer?" she asked, her passage blocked.

"The Continental who's put Grant out of the running?"

"I presume you mean Major Lawrence, although no one has authority to couple my name with his."

"Oh, indeed, I'll show yer authority in plenty, Mistress. Come, now, I'm done discussing this matter. As long as yer father isn't able ter attend ter this affair I am a goin' ter act in his place. We'll have a loyalist marriage, by God! an' have it now. Come, move, yer coyote—Jones, hustle him along. Now, Captain, there's a good place ter stand, in between those windows. Mistress Claire—"

I was all ready, pistol in hand, burning with a determination to shoot Fagin down, yet her voice halted him.

"Wait!" she cried, standing erect and scornful. "I will not consent to this. I am going to leave this room."

"Oh, I reckon not," and he leered into her eyes. "Don't rouse me, or yer'll find out I'm a wolf ter bite. Yer get back there beside Grant, or I'll make yer."

"You will? You dare not!"

"Don't I, Mistress?" he cried savagely. "I'll show yer."

He reached forth one great hand, the fingers gripping her sleeve, but she wrenched away, the cloth tearing as she sprang back.

"Fagin, I know you, but I'm not afraid of you. I know you for a cruel, cold-blooded murderer, an' outrager of women, a thief, and an outlaw. No, you cannot stop me now. You are a low-down cowardly cur, making war on women and children, sneaking around in the paths of armies, plundering and looting the helpless. I despise you and every man associated with you. Neither you, nor all your company, can make me marry Captain Grant. I will die first. No, don't move, and don't think you are dealing with a frightened girl. I am desperate enough, but I can act—" "Hell! Jones, take that hell-cat by the arms!"

"Jones will do nothing of the kind—and you—stand back, Fagin; don't dare to lay a hand on me again!"

Her face was white, her lips set, her eyes blazing, but Fagin, assured of her helplessness, laughed, and stepped forward. From what hidden concealment it came I know not, but there was the flash of a polished barrel, a sharp report, the whirl of smoke, and the brute went backward over a chair, crashing to the floor, with hands flung high over his head. I was aware of the swift rush of a body past me, of steps going up the stairs, and then, with a yell, my men poured out from the library into the hall.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The Fight in the Hall.

Scarcely comprehending that Claire had escaped from the room, I was swept forward by the onrush of bodies. The preacher was knocked headlong beneath the table, but Fagin lay motionless underfoot. Jones and Grant turned to a door at the right, and I leaped after them. One of the two fired, and the ball struck my shoulder, the impact throwing me back against one of my men. An instant I felt sick and dizzy, yet realized I was not seriously hurt, and managed to stagger to my feet. The door was closed and locked, and, although my head reeled, I began to think clearly.

"The other way, lads!" I cried. "Quick, into the hall!"

We tumbled out through the narrow entrance, and I found myself next to Eric. But we were too late to head off the fugitives, or prevent their achieving their purpose. In through the rear door, confused as to what had occurred, yet shouting fiercely, poured Fagin's wolves, seeking trouble. They were a wild, rook-looking lot, ill-dressed, and dirty even in that dim light. For an instant, congested within the limits of the hallway, both sides paused, staring at each other in mutual surprise and hesitation. Then I heard Jones' bellow of command, and Grant's nasal voice profanely ordering them to come on. With us there remained no choice; we must fight it out where we were, regardless of numbers.

"Fire! you damned fools—fire!" roared Jones, and there was a crashing of guns, the dense smoke swirling between us. A Dragoon at my right went sprawling; another behind gave vent to a yell as he plunged head first down the basement stairs. There was the sound of splintering wood, of breaking glass. I felt the blood in my veins leap to the fever of it.

We were upon the fellows with a rush, firing in their very faces, and leaping madly at them. There was little room between the walls, barely space for a half-dozen to fight in, shoulder to shoulder, but those behind, eager to strike also, pressed up so recklessly that we hurled them back. To me it was all confusion, uproar, deadly fighting. I could think of nothing to right or left, only of the struggling devils in my front. Faces, forms, came and vanished in the swirl of smoke, brown gun-barrels whirled before me, flashes of fire burned my eyes, strange features, bearded, malignant, glared at me. I leaped straight at them, striking fiercely. Once I saw Grant, and aimed a blow at him. Then he was gone, swallowed in the ruck.

Our mad onrush swept them back, helpless, demoralized. I stumbled over bodies, slipped in pools of blood, yet kept my feet. Every muscle ached; I was cut and pounded, yet drove into the mass, shouting to those behind:

"Come on, lads! Come on! We're driving them!"

A yard, two yards, three—beyond the door where the men had escaped we won our way. Then they could go no further. Blocked, unable to retreat, wedged helplessly against the far end of the hall they turned like cornered rats. I could see nothing of Jones, but I heard him, raging like a fiend.

"Now, you curs, now!" he stormed. "You cowardly scum—perhaps you'll fight when you can't run! What are you afraid of? There's only a handful, you can chew 'em up, if you will! Push 'em back, there! Push 'em back!"

With a yell of rage, those crushed against the wall hurried forward, driving the others; men were lifted and hurled at us; others gripped at our feet; by sheer force of numbers they swept us backward. It was hand to hand, neither side having time to reload their weapons. The smoke rose, permitting a view of the shambles. There was a tangle of arms, a jumble of faces. They were maddened beasts, desperate, revengeful. Hands clutched at us, gun butts were thrust into our faces, the crush too dense to permit of their being swung overhead. My Dragoons had their sabres out, and stood to it like men, the steel blades dripping as they tasted blood. But killing one only brought a new man to the front. One does not see so much as feel in such a jumble. Yet I knew we were worsted, outnumbered. They came at us like a battering ram. I saw the sergeant thrust through the forehead; I saw Eric go down beneath a crushing stroke, and roll under my feet. I stepped on bodies, fighting for my own life as I never fought before. Somewhere I had gripped a gun out of dead fingers and swung it savagely, smashing the stock at the first blow, but retaining the twisted iron. The intensity of excitement seemed to clear my brain. I began to distinguish voices, to notice faces. I heard Grant yell safely in the rear; I heard Jones roar, "To hell with 'em! To hell with 'em!" Out of the muck of struggling figures I made out his black beard, the gleam of yellow fangs, and leaped toward him, striking men down until I was able to swing at his head. He went over like a stricken ox under a butcher's ax, knocking aside two men as he fell. It gave me chance to spring out of the melee.

"To the stairs, men! The stairs!" I cried. "We can hold them there!"

I cannot describe now how we made it, but we did. I only know Tom and I held the rear, sweeping circles of death with our whirling gun-barrels, falling back step by step as we fought. At last I felt the bottom stairs with my foot, and heard a voice shout:

"Come up, sir! We'll hold 'em now!"

Then I was above the heads of the mob, gripping the rail, and sobbing for breath. There followed a moment's wait, an instant of hesitancy. I began to see and feel once more. Below us the hall was jammed with men, so closely pressed together as to be almost helpless. Blood streamed from a cut in my forehead, nearly blinding me, but I wiped it away, and took one glance at their angry upturned faces, and gained a glimpse of my own men. There were but six of us, and one of these lay helpless propped against the wall. Tom and I stood alone, his face blackened by powder, his shirt ripped into rags; the other three were above, pistols in hand.

"Are they loaded?" I gasped.

"Yes, sir."

"Stand ready then, but look out for above; there was a guard up there—Tom."

He turned his face slightly.

"Move back a step or two more; we've got to hold them."

"All right, sir."

I felt weak from loss of blood, my head reeling, and had to hold to the rail. Below us, growling like wild beasts, but seemingly leaderless, the mob crushed forward to the foot of the stairs. Suddenly I saw Grant, and the sight of him gave me new life.

"You black-faced hound," I called down angrily. "You've kept yourself safe so far. Now come on."

He snarled some answer, what, I know not. There was an empty pistol in my belt, and I flung it at him with all the force of my arm. He dodged, the weapon striking the man behind. With a howl of rage the fellows leaped toward us, bearing Grant on the crest of the wave. The pistols of the Dragoons cracked; three fell, blocking the stairs with their bodies. We had room now in which to swing our iron bars, and we battered them like demons. I lost sight of Grant, the red drip of blood over my eyes making all before me a mist. I only knew enough to strike. Yet fight as we would there was no holding them. We were forced to give way. Guns began to spit fire. I saw the wounded Dragoon dragged down under the feet of the mob; hands gripped my legs, and I kicked at the faces in my effort to tear loose. Tom reeled against the wall, his arm shattered by a blow, and one of the men above came tumbling over me, shot dead. The fall of him cleared the stairs an instant; then the rail broke, and several toppled over with it. I stumbled back almost to the top, sweeping the hair and blood out of my eyes. What—what was the matter? They were running, those fellows down there—struggling, fighting among themselves to get away. Oaths, yells, cries of sudden fear, made a perfect babel. I could not understand, could not grasp the meaning of the sudden panic. Who were those men surging in through the front door, pouring out through the library? Then a voice roared out:

"Bedad, they're Fagin's hell-hounds, byes—ter hell wid 'em!"

Where had I heard the voice before? I sank down, too weak to stand, my head hanging over the edge of the stairs. Some hand drew me back, but I had no strength left. Only I could think—and the truth came to me. Camden militia! Camden militia! By all the gods, Farrell was there! It was the voice of the Irish minute man I heard the night we captured Delavan's raiders. Then I closed my eyes, and forgot.

PARMALEE KILLED IN 400-FOOT FALL

Aviator Caught by Gust of Wind and Crushed by Engine.

TWO AIRMEN DIE IN GERMANY

Birdman Buchstaetter, With Lieut. Stille, an Army Officer, as a Passenger, Are Mangled Beyond Recognition.

North Yakima, Wash., June 3.—Philip O. Parmalee, a young aviator who had acquired considerable fame as a member of the Wright brothers team of flyers, was instantly killed here when a gust of wind caught the tail of his biplane and caused it to overturn and plunge 400 feet to earth.

Parmalee had been up about three minutes on his first flight of the day and had traveled almost two miles when the gust of wind struck the machine. The biplane crashed to the ground, crushing the aviator beneath it.

Parmalee's mechanician rushed to the scene of the disaster

WORDS FROM HOME

STATEMENTS THAT MAY BE INVESTIGATED—TESTIMONY OF DIXON CITIZENS.

When a Dixon citizen comes to the front, telling his friends and neighbors of his experience, you can rely on his sincerity. The statements of people residing in faraway places do not command your confidence. Home endorsement is the kind that backs Doan's Kidney Pills. Such testimony is convincing. Investigation proves it true. Below is a statement of a Dixon resident. No stronger proof of merit can be had.

Julius Gottlieb, merchant, 418 W. First St., Dixon, Ill., says: "All I have previously said in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills holds good and I am glad to confirm my former statement. My back had been causing me considerable trouble and often it was so lame and sore that it was hard to bend over. The kidney action was irregular and I knew that my kidneys were disordered. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I got a supply at Leake Bros.' Co's drug store and they did such good work that I can recommend them."

For sale by at dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Present Generation Also Has Its Duties

MUCH will be written and said of the march to the rhythmic beat of the muffled drum of the decimating phalanx of war veterans in honor of whom, and more especially in honor of those comrades who have passed to eternity, the day has been set aside as a memorial.

All honor to the soldier dead. Sacred is their memory.

Great honor to the veterans who have been spared to us and whose presence should be an inspiration to better citizenship.

Tremendous was the cost of the war in human lives. Awful was the carnage, yet the result was a united nation and a greater nation.

The patriotism which inspired the great outpouring of troops in that wonderful war should be a central idea about which everything should cluster because it burns with patriotism.

It was the most wonderful demonstration of self-sacrifice for a nation's solidarity and honor the world has known.

It was a glorious achievement for principle, and every participant in that magnificent victory deserves more than a floral wreath upon his grave, or, if he be yet with us, more than a laurel wreath upon his brow.

Certainly we do not honor the veterans as we should!

One thing we should do to honor them, among others. We should seek to mold our lives into good citizenship inspired by those very principles for which they fought. Thus may we become the heroes in time of peace that they were in the dark years of war.

Today, as the old bugle blows its solemn and impressive taps over the graves of the soldier dead, let us honor their memory in action by making that inspiring taps a reveille—yes, a call to arms in the war against greed and oppression.

Memorial day!

Citizens, contemplate its true meaning. Honor the soldiers! Pay tribute to the heroes! Bow in honor before them, and be not unmindful of the duty which devolves upon you as one among many to whom those heroes of war have handed down this magnificent commonwealth as a heritage with its great duties and tremendous responsibilities.

IOWA PRIMARIES TODAY

Kenyon and Young Battle Royal for State.

Voters Will Decide Whether Senator or Ex-Senator Shall be Republican Nominee for Toga.

Des Moines, Ia., June 3.—Interest in the Iowa primaries today centered in the contest between United States Senator W. S. Kenyon and former United States Senator Lafayette Young, with the situation even more complex than it has been. Managers of both the candidates were equally insistent in their claims of victory in the returns from the Republican voters of Iowa.

Leaders of both factions were agreed that the real battle would come in Des Moines and Polk county, and that whoever won the majority here would carry the state. Late Young, Jr., son of the candidate, said, "If we carry Polk county we will carry the state." Then he added, "If we break even in Polk county we will carry the state."

The Seventh district, in which Des Moines and Polk county are located, is said to be Cummins territory, and the appearance of Senator Cummins at a mass meeting here is counted on by the Kenyon forces to give them the majority in the district.

The Republican nomination for governor is claimed by the three candidates, George W. Clark, at present lieutenant governor; Perry G. Holden, formerly of Ames Agricultural college, and State Senator A. V. Proudfoot of Indianapolis.

Democrats at today's primaries will make their choice for governor between E. G. Dunn of Mason City and John T. Hamilton of Cedar Rapids.

DANIEL BURNHAM DEAD

Famous Architect's End Comes Suddenly.

Body Is Cremated and Ashes Will Be Sent to America—Revolutionized Building Methods.

Berlin, June 3.—Americans in Heidelberg were sadly surprised at the sudden death of Daniel Hudson Burnham, the famous architect. Mr. Burnham arrived in Heidelberg a few days ago with his wife and son-in-law to take the cure, but he was exhausted by the trip and was unable to rally. He was taken to the Akademisches hospital on Friday and he died there. His ailment was Bright's disease and arterial sclerosis.

The body has been cremated and the ashes will be taken to America next week by Mrs. Burnham, her son and her son-in-law.

Chicago, June 3.—It is probable that Mr. Burnham's original ideas have accomplished more in pioneer work among builders than those of any other member of his profession. He was the builder of the "White City" of world's fair fame. He first conceived the idea of doing away with the heavy walls of masonry which entered into the tall buildings of a few years ago and of constructing skyscrapers on a frame of steel.

It was this idea which worked wonders in the building of office structures throughout the world. The towering structures in every great city in the United States, and even in many of the cities of Europe, are monuments to his genius. Mr. Burnham was born in Henderson, Jefferson county, New York, in 1848.

SOUTH DAKOTA IS READY

For Big Primaries Tomorrow—Campaign Has Been Very Exciting.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 3.—South Dakota closed a warm primary campaign today with meetings in all the larger towns of the state and many of the villages. The primaries will be held tomorrow. The Republican voters will select a list of ten delegates to Chicago and the Democrats the same number to the Baltimore convention. The Republicans have three tickets in the field—La Follette progressive, Roosevelt progressive, and Taft regular. The Democrats have Clark and Wilson delegate tickets in the field. The supporters of Taft are hopeful that the progressive vote will be divided equally between Roosevelt and La Follette, thus giving them a chance to elect their candidate. Mr. La Follette has made a personal campaign, while Mr. Roosevelt has speaking for him ex-Senator Beveridge and Governor Stubbs of Kansas.

HOSPITAL SHIP TO SAIL

Collier Mars Is Not Taking Water—Ships Ready to Aid.

Key West, Fla., June 3.—It is reported that the hospital ship Solace will sail between now and daylight for Guantanamo to care for marines at that point in case of sickness. No further report was received today from the collier Mars, which is ashore, but it is understood she is not taking water. Several ships are standing by to lend assistance if necessary.

OHIO'S CONVENTION TODAY

Republicans Will Name Delegates-at-Large to Chicago Meet.

Columbus, O., June 3.—The Ohio Republican state convention meets here today, and the lists of delegates favored by the Roosevelt and Taft factions in the Republican party have been definitely determined. If the Roosevelt forces are successful, Walter F. Brown, James R. Garfield, I. W. Foster, Dan R. Hanna, R. O. Nevin and Randolph W. Walton will be named delegates at large to the Chicago convention. But should the Taftites win, the men chosen will be L. C. Laylin, A. I. Vorys, Charles P. Taft, Warren G. Harding and Senator Theodore E. Burton.

Farmers' Biggest Money Maker

These are the very words one man used in telling us about his old reliable Saginaw Silo. He added: "I was a farmer owning only 20 acres, even if I had to borrow the money, I would have a Saginaw Silo." The Saginaw preserves your silage perfectly—gives you, at one-half to one-third the cost, an abundance of fresh-building ration for your fattening stock and the richest butter producing feed for your dairy cows all through the winter. The Saginaw is built to do this for a lifetime. It is as solid as a mass of granite. It can never blow down. Come in and let us tell you about the Saginaw's patented Inner Anchoring Hoop and the All-Steel Door Frame. No one else allowed to use them. Let us also tell you about the wonderful
